The Other Charlie.

"Charlie, why don't you go and play with the dog, and not be forever stuck at my feet?"

Such was Mrs. Grey's impatient question one day, when her little son came and seated himself in the parlor while his mother was conversing with a visitor.

"I would rather be with you than the boys," he answered, timidly.

"Oh, I never saw such a boy!"

"Is it wrong to wish to be near you, mamma?" said the child, his neither lip trembling as he spoke.

"Wrong? Of course not. But you are old enough to have some manliness about you. See, yonder are Will and John Growde on the ice. Run along and keep them company; I want to talk to Mrs. Brown."

He picked up his little cap and went off without another word. Mrs. Grey turned to her visitor.

"Isn't he a queer child?" she asked.

The other raised her sad eyes and fixed them with such a painful expression on the mother's face that for a moment Mrs. Grey felt almost offended. She was a sorrowful looking woman, this Mrs. Brown.

"I had a son once; but he is gone now," she said at last, and there were tears in her eyes.

Mrs. Grey gazed at her wonderingly. She had not known this before.

"It is a bitter thing to tear open partially healed wounds," Mrs. Brown continued, "but let me tell you my story.

"Several years ago I was about to give a party; a grand affair it was to be, and my head was almost turned while making preparations. Master Charlie (his name was Charlie, too,) was about 16 years old. He had never been to school; I had educated him myself. At home, he was all a mother's heart could desire; but he was shy, and when I forced him into company, he appeared so awkward, that I felt ashamed of him. This was one reason of my deciding to give a party. If he was obliged to act the part of host he would overcome his bashfulness, I thought. But Charlie never approved of it.

"I shall be glad when this party is over," he said one day; "for since you have got it into your head I have lost my mother."

"Poor little baby!' I responded, slightly provoked at his lack of interest. "I wonder how many more years I shall have you tied to my apron-string?"

I spoke sneeringly, and instantly a proud flush overspread his face.

"I will be tied there no longer," he returned. "I will seek my company in the future."

I was frightened at the result of my words. Still I made no response. My son, putting on his hat and coat, went out. It was the first time in his life that he had ever left me without informing me where he was going.

In time the party came off. It was a gay affair, and none were gayer than Charlie. He was a sort of extremist, and took no medium stand. After that his books and work were neglected, and his days as well his evenings were spent abroad. Fast young men became his constant companions. I was left alone to mourn the change I had wrought. At first he made it a rule to be in at night at 10 o'clock; but after that he began to stay out later, and daybreak sometimes found him from home. I tried to expostulate, tried to win him back to his old habits, but my efforts were unavailing. He had got a taste of new life, and it held him by a charm. Well do I remember the first night he came home in a state of intoxication. It was his seventeenth birthday, just one year from the time I had given the party. I had seen him under the influence of wine once or twice before; but on this night he had drank so deeply that some of his companions had to help him home.

The hours of that night were dreadful hours of reproach and agony. I was so glad when morning came to dispel the gloom—so sad when reason returned to my erring child. He was very much ashamed. He said again and again he would do better; but his resolves were worthless. Two nights afterwards he was again brought home intoxicated.

After that it was a common occurrence. He fell lower and lower, squandered all my ready money, and when I refused to mortgage my property that he might have more, he left me with an oath. That night a large firm was robbed, and it was discovered that Charlie was one of the perpetrators of the deed. The next morning the town was wild with excitement, and I was almost distracted, for my boy had fled. The news passed from mouth to mouth; my house was searched, and my son called a villain; but I had no power to prevent either. No one gave me a word of sympathy.

"You have only yourself to blame," said a blunt old woman, who called during the day. "The boy was happy at home, but you drove him into bad company."

That night, at the hour of twelve as I sat alone, a window was opened softly, and Charlie stepped into the room. With a glad cry I sprang toward him, but he pushed me rudely away.

"Can you hide me anywhere?" he said. "The hounds are after me. Had you given me money yesterday this would not have been."

"Oh, Charlie!" I cried.

"Yes, mother," he said sternly. "You have made me a criminal. I want to tell you I have secretly married Kate Hastings. God knows what will become of her, as the world will not believe we are married. She will be scorned by all."

Kate was a very pretty little creature, only sixteen years old, innocent as the violets which grew around her home. My bleeding heart gave a quick, painful throb.

"Hark! they are coming. Mother, I am too young, too wicked to die, but I must die. Farewell!"

I saw his purpose now, for his hand clutched a revolver; and springing to my feet, I threw my arms about him to shield him from himself. But he shook me off.

The next moment the loud report of his pistol echoed through the house. One glance showed me his lifeless form stretched on the floor.

When I awoke to consciousness the morning sun was shining and the house was filled with people. But even justice was satisfied, and I was left alone with the dead. All day, fearless and motionless, I sat behind the mangled corpse. Some people kinder than the rest, came in to make preparations for the funeral, and passed silently out; but I did not heed them.

Kate Hastings came just after dark. She was dressed in deep mourning, and her face was so ghastly that it startled me.

"You, too, have come to reproach me?" I said.

"No, mother. You suffer enough without my reproaches. I have come to watch with the dead. I which to watch alone. It is my right; I am his wife."

How calm she was! There was not even a tremor in her voice to tell how she suffered.

"Yes, it is your right my poor child!" I said. It gives me another pang ot give him up even to my daughter; still I do it."

She looked up quickly.

"He has told you?"

"Yes."

"Yet you speak kindly to me and do not condemn us?"

A sad but beautiful smile for a moment lighted her features. She raised one of my hands and kissed it reverently.

"Thank you," she said; "sometime you will be glad for having shown this kindness to one so much in need of it. Now, mother leave me."

I left the apartment but did not retire. All night I sat on the floor outside the door, hoping that Katie would bid me enter; but no such summons came. Daylight returned, and the busy world again moved; still I heard no movement in the chamber of death. At last my anxiety became so great that I opened the door and glanced in. The girl knelt by the corpse apparently asleep. Softly I stole forward and raised the drooping head. But no sad eyes met my gaze; nothing but the white face, the staring orbs of a corpse. Katie had died by her own hand, as a bottle which she clinched proved.

The next day they buried the pair, my erring son and his child-wife, in one grave, and as the clods fell on his coffin the brightness of my life went out forever.

Mrs. Brown could say no more, for sobs choked her utterance. Her listener was deeply affected, as her pale face and tearful eyes showed.

Leaving the bereaved mother for a moment, Mrs. Grey stole softly to the door and called:

"Charlie."

The child heard her and came quickly to her side.

"What is it, mamma?"

"It is lonesome without you, darling," she said, drawing him to her.

"Then you love me, mamma?"

"Love you? Oh, Charlie!"

Her arms were about him now, and she was sobbing on his shoulder.

"Did anybody tell you about those bad boys?" he asked, wonderingly. "They have got a flask of whisky, mamma."

"Thank God! you are saved, my darling," she cried hysterically.

She drew him close to her; she clung to him; she showered kisses on his wondering face; but never, until he was a man, with a son of his own, did she tell him the history of that other Charlie, whose childhood and his had been so much alike, and how, by the knowledge of that other Charlie's unfortunate career he had been saved by her, perhaps, from a like fate.

Andy Johnson and the Bankrupt Concern of Jay Cooke & Co.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican has been interviewing Andy Johnson, from whose account we give the following delectable morceau:

At this juncture it occurred to me to ask Mr. Johnson how he was getting along with Jay Cooke & Co., if it would not be trespassing upon his private affairs. "It is no trespass upon my private affairs for you to ask that question," he replied. "I had $71,000, the accumulation of my lifetime, in Henry D. Cook's bank in Washington, and the Receiver has thus far been able to pay depositors fifty cents on the dollar. My main object in going to Washington at this time is to stir those fellows up, and see if the victims of Jay Cooke & Co., cannot get a little more than half of what belongs to them. I shall try to make it lively for that concern in one way or another. I presume the country will know more about Jay Cooke & Co. before long than is now known."

At this point I suggested that it was commonly reported that the house of Jay Cooke & Co. had been crippled by contributions to the campaign fund of 1872, and that Henry D. Cooke has crippled the finances of the District of Columbia by diverting the funds appropriated by Congress in the same direction.

Mr. Johnson said he had no knowledge of any such facts, but that the state of things I had intimated was by no means impossible. The ring at Washington was as lavish in the use of money wherewith to carry its projects as it was unscrupulous in obtaining it. He intended that the people should know more definitely where their money went in the future than they had known in the past. There had been altogether too much room for credence of such reports as the one I had spoken of. He proposed that there should be less latitude for guess work as to the disposition made of public funds hereafter, and intimated that he would be where he could keep watch of those things in 1876 more effectively than he was able to do in 1872.

GOLD.—The astute politican economists who thought that gold and greenbacks could be made to approximate in steps prescribed by law are somewhat puzzled over the continual advance of the former. During the last three months gold and greenbacks have been steadily marching away from each other, in spite of a Federal law to face about and march the other way. In searching out causes for this unexpected movement, some financiers have been led to doubt whether a law that retires eighty dollars in greenbacks and authorizes the issue of one hundred dollars, can really be called a step toward specie resumption. The uselessness of laws declaring that certain results shall follow, without preparing measures tending to that end, is also dawning upon the enlightened comprehension. If Congress should pass a law declaring that one-half the duties on imports might be made in currency, the price of greenbacks would go up in spite of all the corners ever constructed in Wall street. So long as Government shows no disposition to receive its own paper in payment of debts due itself, currency will be an article of merchandise of fluctuating value.—S. F. Call.

The Queen at the Paper Mill.

The Queen was riding out in her grand carriage, the horses tossing their plumes as if they felt themselves a little better than common horses, and the footmen all decked out in red, feeling that they had something royal about them. The Queen had always had everything she wanted, and so was quite miserable because she could not think of a want to supply, or a new place to visit.

At last she bethought her that they had just been building a new paper mill, a few miles out of the city. Now she had never seen a paper mill, and so she determined to stop a little way off, there leave her carriage, and walk in—not as a Queen but as an unknown common lady. She went in alone, and told the owner she would like to see his mill. He was in a great hurry, and did not know that she was the Queen. But he said to himself: 'I can gratify the curiosity of this lady, and add to her knowledge; and, though I am terribly hurried, yet I will do this kindness.' He then showed her all the machinery; how they bleach the rags and make them white; how they grind them into pulp; how they make sheets and smooth them, and dry them, and make them beautiful. The Queen was astonished and delighted. She would now have something new to think about and talk about.

Just as she was about leaving the mill, she came to a room filled with old wornout, dirty rags. At the door of this room was a great multitude of poor, dirty, men and women and children bringing old bags on their backs, filled with bits of rags, and paper, parts of old newspapers, and the like, all exceedingly filthy. These were ragpickers, who had picked these old rags out of the streets and gutters of the great city.

"What do you do with all these vile things?" said the Queen.

"Why, madam, I make paper out of them. To be sure they are not very profitable stock, but I can use them, and it keeps those poor creatures in bread."

"But these rags! Why, sir, they are of all colors, and how do you make them white?"

"O! I have the power of taking out all the dirt and old colors. You see the scarlet and crimson, yet I can make even scarlet and crimson, the hardest colors to remove, become white as snow."

"Wonderful! wonderful!" said the Queen. She took her leave, but the polite owner of the mill insisted on seeing her safe in her carriage. When she got in and bowed to him with a smile, and he saw all the grand establishment, he knew it was the Queen.

"Well, well," said he, "she has learned something at any rate. I wish it might be a lesson in true religion."

A few weeks after, the Queen found lying upon her writing desk a pile of the most beautiful polished paper she had ever seen. On each sheet were the letters of her own name and her own likeness. How she did admire it! She found also a note within, which she read. It ran thus:

"Will my Queen be pleased to accept a specimen of my paper, with the assurance that every sheet was manufactured out of the contents of those dirty bags which she saw on the backs of those poor ragpickers? All the filth and colors are washed out, and I trust the result is such as even a queen may admire. Will the Queen also allow me to say, that I have had many a good sermon preached to me in my mill? I can understand how the God of Israel can take the poor heathen, the low, sinful creatures everywhere, viler than the rags, and wash them and make them clean; and how, though their sins be as scarlet, He can make them whiter than snow; and though they be red, like crimson, He can make them as wool.' And I can see that He can write His own name upon their foreheads, as the Queen will find her name upon each sheet of paper; and I can see how, as these filthy rags may go into the palace and ever be admired, some poor, vile sinners may be received into the palace of the Great King in Heaven'."

—Cynosure.

The Sensational Preacher.

The Christian Intelligencer is waging sturdy warfare against sensational preaching. Given in summary its main objections are: The evil influence of mere pulpit notoriety upon the church and society is apparent. The declamatory and sensational preacher gathers around him only a particular class. It is a class marked by defects that require to be removed rather than strengthened. They are commonly the very same defects which the preacher has himself. Like priest, like people. He abhors doctrine, and they abhor it. He talks metaphors, relates anecdotes, and raises laughter, and they like metaphors, anecdotes and laughter. He favors loose and easy going ethics, and they enjoy the same. In this way the preacher speedily becomes the "great man" of his congregation, and then

Like Cato gives his little Senate laws,
And sits attentive to his own applause.

The injurious effects of notoriety upon the individual himself who is so unfortunate as to have it is manifold. It is almost fatal to personal piety. The devout and saintly men in the history of the Church have not been local celebrities. No deep and pure character is formed under the intoxicating stimulus of a crowd of partisans. On the contrary, infirm virtue, and lapses, and great scandals are apt to come in connection with such influences. The effect upon the preacher in puffing him up with self-conceit is remarkable. It is very difficult for him to think others better than himself, and to condescend to men of low estate.

NEW RAILROAD.—Ninety thousand dollars of the one hundred thousand dollars necessary to inaugurate the construction of a proposed railroad from Woodland to Capay Valley, west of that town, have been subscribed, and the early prosecution of the work is confidently looked for. The completion of this and the road from Woodland to Tehama will give the former town an importance as a railroad center second only to Sacramento.—Record-Union.

ANDY JOHNSON made a stirring speech in the Senate on Monday in opposition to the Louisiana revolution and denunciatory of Federal and military interference in the affairs of State Governments.

The Bandit Vasquez.

Tiburcio Vasquez, the native Californian, who not long since terrorized the southern counties of this State, was hanged at San José, March 19, as per sentence. He concluded to make no statement on the scaffold, as we learn from a dispatch to the Record-Union, but to one Beers, who is writing the story of his life, Vasquez said:

"To fathers and mothers of children: Standing on the portals of an unknown and unknowable world and looking backward on life as I have seen it, I would urge on you to make it your greatest aim to so train and instruct and govern the young to whom you have given life, to be kept aloof, as far as possible, from degrading companionship of the immoral and vicious. The general welfare of society depends on the strict performance on your part of this duty. The state of society in the next generation depends on the manner in which children of this one are trained. I wish the young throughout the world, who may read the incidents of my life, to take warning in time from the example set them by me, and to realize the full force of the same. The way of the trangressor is hard, the truth of which is now being verified to me. The world must not be allowed to think, by what I say, that I reflect on the instruction and training I myself have received from my own parents. I here affirm that they did all they could to bring me up the right way. Circumstances that they could not control threw me among the vicious, and I disobeyed their faithful sayings. I humbly ask pardon of each and everyone I, in any way, have injured, asking that pardon with all the earnestness that a dying man can. Asking also the prayers of all good Christian people that forgiveness may be extended to me, not only by them I have wronged, but by the Great Father, whose laws I have trampled on. The forgiveness I ask of those whom I have wronged, I freely give to all who injured me. I thank my counsel each one for the devotion to me in my hour of distress, and express my gratitude to Sheriff Adams and his Deputy Sheriffs Winchell, Sellman and Curtis for kindness while in costody. I thank my brothers for the brotherly love extended me during my troubles, and to my darling and beloved sister I render inexpressible thanks. Oh, sister of mine! thy love to me will buoy me up in my last moments. I commend my soul and the hereafter that is before me to the keeping of the Maker, without whose help I can never expect complete pardon.

Witnesses: W. H. Collins, Theo. C. Winchell, J. H. Adams, George A. Beers, H. S. Foote, John McGonigle and Sellman.

THE OTHER STATEMENT

Is as follows: "To my former associates: I which you, who will doubtless expect to hear some last farewell words from me, whose fortunes and adventures you have shared, to ponder well the few words I now deem it proper to say to you. You must well know that I could, had I been so disposed, have disclosed to the authorities and the world the perpetrators of many atrocious crimes. I might thus have saved my own life. So, you see, if the world cannot, that to a certain extent this expiation is on my part voluntary. I wish to specially understand that, while I deny having committed the immediate crimes of which I am convicted and am about to suffer death, or of having at any time shed human blood, or taken the life of my fellow man, common sense compels me to understand and recognize the justice of the law which holds me responsible for the innocent lives lost in the prosecution of my unlawful calling of robbery. The threats and revenge which have been made by some of my friends; threats to retaliate by outrages on communities at large, and by the assassination of my captors, the jury who convicted me, or the officers who have prosecuted me or have held me as a prisoner, are foolish and wrong, for all these people have merely represented the law, and have acted in the interest of society. By the course threatened you could do me no good, but only bring yourself in the end to my own fate. Take warning then by my fate and change your course of life while you may. I, Tiburcio Vasquez, now about to pay the penalty of a misdirected life, say this to you, my former companions, with the solemn earnestness of a dying man.

TIBURCIO VASQUEZ."

Witnesses: John McGonigle, Theo. C. Winchell, J. H. Adams, Geo. A. Beers, H. S. Foote, W. H. Collins, John A. Ethel, A. Sellman.

HON. J. K. LUTTRELL.—Mr. Luttrell arrived in Santa Rosa on Saturday evening last from Washington City. He met with a warm reception from his many personal political friends. In the course of the evening he was serenaded at his residence on College Avenue, and his appearance was greeted with a round of applause. His remarks in reply were brief and appropriate. Mr. Luttrell has been one of the most active and energetic representatives we have ever had from this coast, devoting his whole time to the interests of his constituents, accomplishing all that could be done in the face of a strong and exacting Radical opposition. Should he desire a reelection he would doubtless be returned by a majority larger than was ever before given in this District. Mr. Luttrell has also been prominently spoken of as a candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket. We do not know what his intentions are, but we believe that he will prove one of the strongest men yet named for either position before the people.—Sonoma Democrat.

DURATION OF LIFE.—According to Dr. Farr's Life Tables, the average duration of life after the age of 20, is 40 years. In other words, a person who has reached the age of 20 will probably live till the age of 60. Dr. Morgan found the average of the Oxford crew of 1829 to be 46 years, and the Cambridge crew, of the same year, to be 48.6, or an excess of from 6 to 8 years beyond the average of human life, and concludes that the University parsmen, though their labor be excessive at times, are more robust, better scholars, and live longer than the other students. Rev. Henry Arthur Morgan, brother of the above, says: "I have, myself, rowed in over 100 eight-oared races, on the Cambridge, and have mingled much with rowing men, but have never seen injurious effect.

Emotional Religion.

The advent into our State of Rev. Hammond, a revivalist of some note, has been productive of much comment, and many serious doubts have arisen in the minds of men whether his peculiar plan of saving souls is calculated to inspire us with that degree of respect and veneration for religion that we should have, and whether it is a success or a failure. The basis of his operations is excitement—an unnatural state of mind. Religion should command our highest esteem. It is a great and honored system, having in view the amelioration of our condition, and tending to inspire us with great and good thoughts. Its scope is illimitable, its benefits inexhaustible, its teachings pure. Its followers are shining examples among men. To understand it, to comprehend its vast significance, is not the study of an hour. To live in harmony with its precepts is not in the power of those who know nothing of its precepts. In order to succeed in any, the most ordinary pursuit of life, we must have some knowledge of that pursuit. The tendency of such a system as that now being so energetically put in operation in San Francisco is evidently against the real interests of our Christian religion. A calm, dispassionate avowal of religious conviction is more highly regarded than the impulsive, thoughtless wanderings of hot-headed men and weak-minded children. A more solemn act a man cannot do than that of professing religion. It should be the result of long deliberation and calm reflection. To be, in name, a follower of Christ, and to be in heart a follower of Christ, are two different conditions. Which is better? And yet we are told that so many sinners are converted, so many have joined the church. In reply, we can but refer to the many, many instances of backsliding. We do not write against the church, against being converted, but we do protest against hasty conversions, the result of sensational, emotional exhortation, and worse preaching. Children's minds are filled with strange and gloomy forebodings of their future, and taught to look upon God as a being endowed with an immense stock of vengeance, and ready at any time to hand them over to the dreaded Satan. All this is wrong. It savors of a morbid desire to force christianity upon everybody, utterly regardless of consequences. When men and women are converted under strong religious excitement they seldom, if ever, are moved by a deep conviction or profound religious belief. They think once nominally converted the rest will take care of itself. One religion deserves better treatment at the hands of its professed advocates. It should be dealt with in a respectful and dignified manner, and should not be held up to ridiculous criticisms. We hope to see this emotional religion done away with, and a purer, holier and better religion take its place.—Colusa Independent.

FIVE HUNDRED SHOTS A MINUTE.—A machine gun was exhibited and tested yesterday in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. Mr. Willard B. Farwell, the inventor, operated and explained his invention. Among those who saw the experiment were Col. John E. Gowan and Col. Knox of the Ordnance Bureau, Col. Porter and many other officers of the National Guard.

Mr. Farwell's invention consists of ten steel barrels of twenty-five calibre arranged exactly parallel to each other in a metalic frame. From center to center of the outer barrels is three feet. Each barrel is charged separately from a magazine containing fifty rounds of ammunition. The charging, firing and extraction of exploded shells are all accomplished by the turning of one crank, at each revolution of which the whole ten barrels are discharged, emptied, and reloaded. With relays of magazines, five hundred shots can be fired a minute. A system of cog wheels connects the firing crank with a traverse, and each turn of the crank traverses the exact width of the target. Thus the gun is automatic in this particular, designed to pick off a line of battle in regular detail.

Its points of difference from the Gatling gun are in the simultaneous loading and firing of ten barrels; the latter loading each barrel through the same magazine aperture and firing but one shot at a time.

Mr. Farwell had only one magazine at the trial yesterday, so the actual rapidity of fire attainable was not demonstrated. The fifty shots contained by the one magazine, however, were several times fired in six seconds. The appearance of the target after the firing, all the shots having struck at about the height of a man's breast, showed how irresistibly destructive such a weapon would be in a street fight or in resisting a charging enemy.

POSTAGE.—Postmaster Coey of San Francisco has received official advice from Washington that hereafter the postage on third-class matter will be at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction, as heretofore. Third-class matter embraces all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, magazines, handbills, posters, unsealed circulars, books, book manuscripts, proof sheets, maps, prints, blanks, flexible patterns, engravings, articles of merchandise, sample cards, letter envelopes and wrappers, seeds, cuttings, bulbs and all other matter which may be declared mailable by law, and all other articles not exceeding four pounds in weight, which are not from their form or nature liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise injure the contents of the mail bag, or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. Similar instructions have been received by the Postmaster of Sacramento.

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.—A late trip through portions of San Joaquin and Stanislaus counties convinces the editors of the Stockton Independent that the crop prospect has never been better at this season of the year than at present. It is true that rain would do much good, but those who are reporting that the crops in this portion of the State are now seriously suffering from drouth are certainly mistaken. There are many fields of early sown grain that would probably produce a fair crop should we have but little more rain, while even the late sown, where the land has been well tilled and thoroughly cultivated, is looking green and promising.

PUB. DOC.—We have received from Hon. J. K. Luttrel the Report of the Commissioners of Education for 1872—a large volume full of educational statistics.

ADJOURNED.—After completing its business, including the passage of resolutions sustaining Grant's Louisiana Policy, the Senate adjourned on Wednesday last.

REVIVED.—The San Joaquin Valley Argus, which has for some time been suspended on account of the murder difficulty at Merced, has been revived again by its old publisher, R. G. Steele.

GOOD IDEA.—Mrs. Belle Lynch, of Ukiah, Mendocino county, who has since her husband's death conducted his paper, the Independent Dispatch, with signal ability, has changed the name of the paper to the Democratic Weekly Dispatch.

"INDEPENDENTS."—In response to inquiry by the Sacramento Bee, the Mail says Green and Hutton are not Republicans, "they have thrown off the shackels of party" and "belong to the great Independent party." Will Republicans make a note on't.

TO BE GOBBLED.—The opinion seems to prevail about Buckeye that when the new railroad arrives at Winters' the former place will be in about the condition that Silveyville, Solano county, was when the California Pacific left it to one side about three miles. All the movable buildings were taken "the plains across" to Dixon. So it will be at Buckeye. They must either move over to Winters' or shut up shop.

TOLL ROADS.—The people of this county do not want toll roads. The Mail "speculates" in favor of a toll road through Cache Creek Cañon, but we protest against any such proceeding. If the route selected by the commissioners and recommended by them to the Board be taken for the road, it need not cost a very large sum—just how much we are not advised—and as to keeping it in repair, it will not require a large amount. Let the Supervisors construct the road over the easy grade mentioned to the county line; then interested parties on the other side will do their part and make a good practical free road. The repairing is an after consideration. The road should be put through, even though Supervisor Mehring does oppose it. There are five members, and his vote cannot defeat it. Messrs. Megowan, Swingle and J. K. Smith are known to be in favor of it and see its necessity. How J. C. Smith stands we are not advised, but presume he would favor it, because it is so plainly a work of necessity to which the people are entitled. It would add to the business of our county very materially, and the additional taxes that would soon be paid in consequence would very soon pay back to the treasury all it would cost. By all means this county should do its full share of the work of opening a good, practicable, free road on this route. She will get the lion's share of the benefit to be derived. No toll roads or toll bridges for us. The people do not want them. Good free roads and bridges in all parts of the county will do more to to facilitate and increase business and prosperity then almost anything else that could be done at present.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR APRIL has for one of its principal features an article by Mr. Joel Stacy, entitled "John Spooner's Great Human Menagerie." The manager of this wonderful show—with a generosity unusual among men of his profession—lets us at once into the secrets of the exhibition, and describes each animal so minutely that any half-dozen boys with enough ingenuity and pasteboard can easily form a similar collection for themselves. No detail of construction is omitted, and pictures of almost all the marvels, with explanatory diagrams, are set before us. The two serials, "The Young Surveyor" and "Eight Cousins," though doubtless equal in popularity, are quite unlike in character, and there is variety enough in the April installments. For the youthful admirers of "The Young Surveyor" the present chapter are likely to make him an object of real sympathy. Miss Alcott's heroine, on the other hand, is just now enjoying life amazingly, with a novel trip to China, conversations with the Celestials, and a boat-race in which the cargo and seamanship are of a curious order. We find in this number also a bit of history concerning the famous "Bunker-Hill Powder;" an illustrated narrative of a hard fought battle with a grizzly at uncomfortably close quarters; a sketch of a Pilot's life, with its dangers and incidents; and, in "The Great Freshet," a graphic story descriptive of scenes—both comic and dangerous—attending the rapid rise of a river. Then there is the story of "Cinderella" told in a new form with a practical lesson, and having for an illustration the beautifully engraved frontispiece from a painting by Champney; while the wise Peterkin family indulges in another characteristic consultation—this time as to the best way of getting out of doors when snowed-up. The number contains several good poems, by H. H., Anna B. Averill and others; and the list of artist-contributors besides other names those of F. O. C. Darley, Eytinge, Sheppard, and Addie Ledyard.

Road to Berryessa Valley.

At last a movement has been started toward constructing a wagon road through Putah Cañon, the people of Berryessa and the west side of our county having taking the matter in hand. A meeting was held not long since at Monticello to consider the matter, at which it was determined to take action in this important movement—important not only to them, but also to this county. At the meeting a willingness was expressed by the Berryessa people to construct the road to the Yolo county line, if this county will improve it to that point, which it is proposed to petition our Board of Supervisors to take action upon at their next meeting, a committee having been appointed for that purpose.

The fact is, the trade of Berryessa ought to come to this county. Putah Cañon is their natural outlet, with a down grade all the way, and to the new town of Winters, the terminus of the Vaca railroad extension, the distance is only fourteen miles—to the county line only six or seven, and half of that distance is level valley road. Napa several years ago expended some $25,000 to secure the trade of Berryessa Valley, which embraces a very fertile and thickly populated region about ten by twenty miles in extent, and which is of as much importance to Napa City as that of its own valley. This heavy expenditure was necessary from the fact that the distance was upwards of thirty miles and over very rugged, mountainous country. Solano county also expended some $20,000 for the same purpose, but did not succeeded in securing much of the traffic. But if our Board will take hold of the matter there will be no difficulty in bringing this trade into our county in a short time, at comparatively very little cost. It is a matter of self-interest with the people of Berryessa to come this way. It now costs the farmers of that region $8.50 per ton for freight to Vallejo, via Napa; by Winters' it can be carried for $5 per ton. This important fact, together with those other very prominent considerations—that the distance this way is less than half, and a down grade all the way—show the ease with which the Berryessa trade may be secured to its natural outlet, and that Yolo county may reap some of the accruing profits if she will.

Our county has been altogether too backward in road matters, has shown a lack of enterprise, of which neighboring counties have taken advantage. If the Board will now act in the construction of roads, we may yet secure the trade and patronage of three very important regions to us in the aggregate, namely: that of the Quicksilver region through Cache Creek Cañon; of the Berryessa Valley, via Putah Cañon; and of South Putah, by the contemplated road south from Davisville. We hope these matters will be seen in their true light, and that the blind policy of shutting out such important regions by non-action will not be pursued. A little money judiciously expended in the directions indicated will be returned to the treasury very shortly four-fold; and not only so, but will be a continual benefit to the county and her business men hereafter.

MORE STRONGLY DEMOCRATIC.—If the Democratic Sweep in New York State last Fall was a tidal wave, the elections just held in the cities of that State are a perfect deluge. Eight out of ten of the large interior cities which have voted, namely: Troy Utica, Rome, Cohoes, Oswego, Rochester, Poughkeepsie and Newburg went Democratic. The Radicals carried Auburn and Elmira. Rochester elected the Democratic ticket by 3,000 majority, and in the strong Radical county of Monroe the Democrats have twenty-five Supervisors. In Oneida county, hitherto strongly Radical, the residence of the United States Senators Conkling and Kernan, the Democrats have a majority of twenty in the Board of Supervisors, a gain of fifteen over last year. In Utica, its county-seat, the Democrats have 1,000 majority. In Oswego county, which is a two-or-three-thousand Radical county, the Democrats have a majority in the Board of Supervisors. In Troy (city) the Democrats have 3,000 majority, and it generally goes Radical. In Newburg we had 600 majority. In Dutchess county the Radicals had thirteen Supervisors to the Democrats twelve last year; now they have five to the Democrats twenty. Boards of Supervisors in the State of New York have much patronage, and their elections are always fought on political grounds. These results, which we have instanced, are an example of the sweep made in the Empire State. And the Enquirer declares that they are an indication of what will take place in Cincinnati.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH for April contains valuable information on Fevers; Sunlight and Sun-bathing; Popular Physiology; "What I Know about Doctoring;" Why our Women Fade so Quickly; Motherhood a Labor of Love; Babies and Baths; Wheat and its Products, with valuable recipes; Getting Ready for Spring; Mirth at Meal-time; Healthful Excursions; Suicides, etc.; with answers to many questions of general interest, making an excellent number. The Science of Health is having a deservedly wide circulation. Price only 20 cents, or $2 a year. Sent on trial half a year for $1 by S. R. Wells, Publisher, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

ENGINE TRIAL.—Another trial of the fire engine gave better results, but the general conclusion seems to be that she works too hard. Would it not be the best policy to buy a steamer while we are about it? Many think it would be the cheapest, most efficient, and best course in the long run.

Davisville Correspondence.

DAVISVILLE March, 21st, 1875.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT:—I just sat down to take a rest after my work, when the question was abruptly put to me, "Have you seen the YOLO DEMOCRAT?" answering in the negative, I was told there were two letters from here; one from "Mc Cracken" and the other from "Observer." I hastened to obtain it, and on looking over its columns it became clear to me that there was but little rest for the weary until these letters were answered.

Imagine my ecstacy on reading them. My fancy winged me off to the third heaven of fame, for it was plainly shown in the letter who "Unicorn" is, and in my imagination I'd have considered it no compliment if the Davisville band had turned out and played "Hail to the Chief," from the warm eulogy which my cotemporary "Observer" makes use of.

Next in order comes "Mc Cracken," the Davisville Lunatic, as he calls himself. I don't pretend to be a judge of lunacy, but his species of insanity seems to be that of the knave.

The angel of death has again been abroad in our midst, which your correspondents forgot to mention, and has drawn from the infant body of John Canfield the breath of life.

Every thing seems to be upward and onward here. We have a revival, a writing school, and a singing class.

UNICORN.

ANOTHER LETTER.

DAVISVILLE, March 23rd, 1875.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT:—Who would imagine that a little burg like ours, nestling in such peaceful tranquility in the center of one of the finest agricultural districts of the State, with scarcely a ripple of trouble to mar the serene surface of her affairs, would also be blessed with such an array of literary talent as has manifested itself through the columns of your valuable paper for the refreshment of the thirsty readers of this county? The citizens of Davisville should feel proud when Friday rolls round and with it the DEMOCRAT, that they can in the evening, after their day of labor has ended, be seated by their firesides and read the outpourings of their eloquent representatives.

"Observer" has evidently read the Bible, or at least tries to create that impression, by explaining why Lot's wife was not turned into "sugar," and dilating upon her folly for the benefit of the ladies with a masterly hand. It is a pity he was not there before the sad catastrophe occurred to warn her.

There is a protracted meeting in the Presbyterian Church. An interesting feature of it is that some of the women are trying to take the place of the men in the pulpit.

I witnessed a very exciting chicken race the other day. A chicken had escaped from some coop, and a vegetable dealer, thinking it was his, started in pursuit. Getting out-winded an expressman and another gentleman took his place. After chasing it around the streets much to the jeopady of teams, the gentleman's head got faster than his feet, which brought him to a very abrupt standstill, the expressman after surmounting immeasurable difficulties showed great skill in catching it, but a little girl came up, claimed the chicken as hers, and walked off in triumph amidst the laughter of the crowd. More anon, HAROLD.

PROSPERING AND TO PROSPER.—The Evening Herald, the paper just started in Sacramento, improves with every issue. It is appreciated by the business public there to such an extent that it has already made substantial improvements, looking and evidently feeling well.

THE OVERLAND MONTHLY FOR APRIL.—In the present issue we find that more than usual attention has been given to the Pacific Coast, particularly in a historical point of view, viz: "California Indian Characteristics," by Stephen Power; "Pioneers of the Pacific," a poem, by Joaquin Miller; "Six Months in '49, by Henry Degroot; "Wild Wool," by John Muir; and "How we Did it on Scott's Bar," a characteristic Overland story, by Wm. M. Turner. "Our Village School" is the title of one of Prentice Mulford's best-told descriptive sketches. Charles W. Stoddard relates his experience with "The Strolling Players in Stratford;" and the editor, Walt. M. Fisher, continues his "Autobiography of a Philosopher" in short but readable chapters, this being the fourth. T. A. Harcourt's poem, entitled, "Art's Comforting," will strike a sympathetic and encouraging chord in many a desponding artist's heart. Other articles are, "Poisoned by Wourali," "Oshkosh in the Vatican," "The Mystery" (a poem), closing part of "Thorpe, Cavalier"—rather a long drawn-out story—and "Falconry in America." In the "Etc." department a just tribute is paid to D. C. Gilman, the retiring President of the University of California. This is a most readable number. John H. ALL TOLD.—The one hundred thousand dollars proposed to be raised for building the Capay and Elkhorn railroad has been subscribed, which insures the success of the undertaking. A meeting has been called for the election of a treasurer, who will at once proceed to collect ten per cent. of the subscriptions, after which an incorporation will be effected as speedily as possible, and then arrangements will at once be made for the survey, location and construction of the road. Though they waited long, the people in the Cañon, along the route and in Woodland, have at last done well, and saved their reputation. For this place, especially, it would have been an everlasting reproach to have let this project go by default; for just so surely would there have been a line running up the valley to the west of us cutting off a large share of the traffic and trade that now comes here. So far, we say well done. But this road will ultimately go on up through Cache Creek Cañon into Lake and Mendocino counties, tapping the great coast lumber region. This is a great consideration for this rich, extensive and almost timberless valley. It will give those western counties direct communication with the State Capital and connection with the overland route. Everyone who will examine the map and geography of this part of the State must see that this road will be an important one to all Central California in the very near future, for the reasons mentioned, to say nothing of other equally weighty ones. Then let the Central construct the contemplated line from this place to Red Bluff, and Woodland will become, as the Record-Union says, a railroad centre second only in importance to Sacramento.

ODD FELLOWS' CELEBRATION.—The anniversary of the introduction of Odd Fellowship into the United States will be celebrated in this place by the Odd Fellows throughout the county, who also invite the public to unite with them, on Monday, April 26th. We call attention to the programme of the day's proceedings in this paper. It will be noticed that Hon. Leonidas E. Pratt will be the orator of the day—a very learned and eloquent gentleman. The Order is deservedly very popular here, and there is no doubt but that with favorable weather this will be a monster celebration.

VERY PROPER.—In the new Congregational Church in this place is hung, in a prominent position, a large card with the words printed upon it: "Use no Tobacco in this Church." On the day and evening of the church dedication tobacco users so desecrated the building by their filthy practices, that the pastor determined to put a stop to it in the future, even at the risk of offending. He is quite right. Persons ought at least to be willing to deny themselves such dirty habits while in a house consecrated to the service of God, if they do not at other times.

LECTURES ON BIBLE PROPHECIES.—Elder J. H. Waggoner will continue his lectures at the Advent Church every evening this week and next. Saturday and Sunday there will be services morning and evening. Thus far the lectures have been well attended, as they will doubtless continue to be. The Elder understands his subjects thoroughly. The lectures are free and all should hear them.

COIN DISCOVERY.—Last Sunday, while plowing was being done on Charley Reed's ranch, at Knights Landing, a lot of gold coin was turned up amounting to nearly a hundred dollars. The pieces were of different denominations and nationalities, the latest date being 1850. It had doubtless been buried there by some one who has either died since its burial or forgotten it.

THEATRICAL.—The well known McGinley Troupe—Mr. and Mrs. McGinley, three accomplished daughters and a son—are now performing at Washington Hall, and will continue at least this and to-morrow evenings. It is a good troupe and they receive liberal patronage wherever they go. Programmes announce particulars.

DISAPPOINTED.—On Tuesday and Wednesday the indications here were very favorable for rain, but they have passed away again with only a sprinkle. Many grain fields would have been benefitted by a good rain. We will hope for it yet in time to help all that requires it.

VALUABLE TEAM.—Geo. W. Andrews sold his heavy dray team the other day to a San Francisco purchaser for six hundred dollars. They were taken to the metropolis to be used in the same line of business.

DEATH.—Mrs. Loughborough, wife of Elder J. N. Loughborough, died in St. Helena, Napa County, yesterday morning, March 25th, of consumption, after a long and painful illness.

KEY FOUND.—A small brass key was found at the corner of Sixth and Court streets, which the owner can have by calling at this office.

VACA RAILROAD.—The extension of this railroad by Messrs. G. B. and A. M. Stevenson, to Winters', in this county, a distance of thirteen miles, is progressing rapidly, the grading of the most difficult half being already completed. All the grading will be finished in a few weeks. The iron and bridge timber has been contracted for, the former in San Francisco, and the latter with Mr. Powell of Vallejo. Mr. G. B. Stevenson informs us the road will be in running order to Winters' by the 1st of July. This will be a grand thing for the farmers in that part of the valley, as it will bring a market right to their door. We look upon this extension now as a fixed fact. The Stevenson Bros. are men of capital, experience, and pluck, and will do as they have agreed.

PHYSICAL AND MENTAL CULTURE.—Prof. McDonald and Dr. Rice closed their lectures upon Human Nature and the Laws of Life, last evening. They have drawn large audiences which they richly deserve wherever they go, as their lectures directly tend to elevate mankind to a higher, nobler and grander standard physically, intellectually, and morally. Prof. McDonald is an adept in that complex science, Phrenology, and reads human nature as an open book. Dr. Rice is a bright light in the medical profession; reformatory in practice and a thorough hygienist, believing in aiding, but letting nature take her course in the cure of disease.

SPRING PREPARATIONS.—It hardly need be said that A. Alexander, at the White House, has, as usual, made the most perfect preparations for introducing the Spring trade. Every department of the business has received the most careful attention. The latest importations in dress goods—grenadines, diagonals, ribbons, sashes, scarfs, rusching, and many other articles too numerous to mention. The fact is becoming very generally recogonized that the White House establishment is developing more style and taste in their line than any other house in town. *

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—Wm. H. Price, a native of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, died in this place on Friday last. He had been a resident of this county about eight years and was a man who had no enemies so far as we are aware. Elder Pendegast of the Christian Church preached his funeral discourse, and though not a member of any church he was most favorable to that faith.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—John Gilmore and wife celebrated their golden wedding at the residence of their daughter and son-in-law, C. S. Frost, Esq., in this place on the 23d inst. They were married in New York City, March 23d, 1825.

TORNADO.—A terribly destructive tornado passed over eight counties in the State of Georgia, and two or three in South Carolina. The destruction of life and property is said to be simply appalling.

F. & A. M. Resolutions on the Death of O. B. Westcott.

At a meeting of Woodland Lodge, No. 150, F. & A. M., held March 19th, 1875, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the Great Architect of the Universe to remove from our midst our beloved brother Oliver Bates Westcott, and

Whereas, It is just and right that a proper recognition of his many virtues he had by this Lodge, therefore,

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of our Supreme Master, we mourn the loss of our brother who has been taken from us.

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Westcott this Lodge laments the loss of a faithful brother, who was ever ready to aid and assist the needy and distressed; an active and useful member of the Lodge, whose influence was ever exerted for its welfare and prosperity; a friend and companion dear to us all; a citizen whose traits of character all would do well to emulate.

Resolved, That this Lodge extend to the family of our departed brother its deepest sympathy in their sad affliction.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Lodge, that a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of our deceased brother, also a copy to Hiram Lodge no 43, F. & A. M., of Eldorado County, Cal., and to each of the newspapers published in this place.

Letter from San Jose.

SAN JOSE, March 20th, 1875.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT:—It is not necessary, I suppose, to make an apology for not having written as I promised; so suffice it to say that negligence was the cause of it.

Upon receiving the DEMOCRAT my joy was inexpressible. To read its columns was to meet face to face with a friend after having traveled a long time without meeting any but strangers. Therein I noticed some reference to the printing contract, and fancied I saw Wag., his face beaming with an illusory smile, while the panoramic physiognomy of the ex-squire and present Supervisor, feigning unbiased judicature, bore grave seriousness, while the electric shocks of laughter shot up either sleeve. The result was no more than I expected, however.

CROP PROSPECTS.

In my last I gave a very favorable description of San José and vicinity, and the subject well warranted my remarks. But the long season of dry weather, accompanied by occasional north winds, lead every body to fear that the crops will be much less abundant than was expected some time ago. The farmers express their doubts of reaping a profitable harvest, and the Mercury says there will be none at all. At any rate everybody anticipates hard times—even harder than those at present. The laborer and mechanic will find this a poor field of labor so long as Chinamen are so largely employed. The San José

WOOLEN MILL

Employs sixty or seventy hands—Chinamen. Now this is a fine display of industrial enterprise, isn't it? You enter the first floor and there see Chinamen at work. You ascend to the second; there your eyes feast on the same delicious spectacle. Ascending to the third, you meet the inevitable heathen. The American is entirely out of place on the premises.

O ye fair Celestial group,
To whom all other men must stoop!

Of course cheap labor is necessary to the capitalists, but how about national advancement? What are we coming to?

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Was ushered in here with all the formality attending the custom of celebrating such holidays. The order of Hiberians organized in Santa Clara in the morning, and the procession, in regalia, headed by the Santa Clara band, marched to this city, and after parading the streets proceeded to St. Patrick's, where ceremonies were held and an able address was delivered by Rev. Father Spellman on the life and character of St. Patrick. In the evening, as a necessary afterpiece to the performance, on the streets were seen many of the worthy followers of St. Putrick, who had too often drank the "health" of that paternal saint during the day.

THE EXECUTION OF VASQUEZ,

Of whose exploits we have heard so much, took place, and it of course drew numbers of people to this place. As your correspondent did not see fit to urge his reportorial right, he was allowed to linger on the outside with about 500 others who had no permits. However horrid the scene may be, there seems to be a universal desire to witness the execution of a doomed man. During the ceremony numbers climbed trees and windmills in the neighborhood, and some even tried to scale the walls of the Court House to witness the hanging. Chavez didn't come!

THE WOMEN OF SAN JOSE,

To use a vulgarism, are "away up." I have read with deep emotion of the aristocracy of the Mmes. of Paris; how the georgeous creatures live in palaces of luxury, basking in idleness and bliss; but never could I realize the true sublimity of the picture until I witnessed some of the manners of the San José "high flyers." Their husbands, in many cases, are day laborers, battling with the waves of adversity to sustain fashionable families and pay house rent. Others, however, are San Francisco merchants and wealthy business men, who can well afford this luxuriant style of living. For the wives of these this mania would not seem so indiscreet, since they themselves "do it grand in a foreign land;" and why shouldn't their wives at home? Women, in many instances, are very unprofitable property; yet few men beforehand base their calculations that way.

ANOTHER SOCIETY.

An Art Association, for the advancement of art, has just been organized in San José. The organization not only includes artists, but all may join who feel interested in its work. The object is certainly good, and should be more generally encouraged. They offer membership to all who wish to unite with them in their work.

Carl Browne, the San José artist, yesterday evening, the day on which Vasquez was hung, had placed in a public window a pencil sketch of the execution, drawn on the ground. It drew great numbers of spectators who were not fortunate enough to witness the original. The same outlines will doubtless be used for some pictorial publication. Respectfully yours,

CYRIL.

CONCERT.—The blind boys Wm. Smith and Luke Andrews have issued posters announcing a grand concert on Monday evening, April 5th. They ought to, and no doubt will be, well patronized. We learn that many of the best singers and performers of the place have volunteered to aid them.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.—A meeting of the subscribers to the stock of the Capay Valley and Elkhorn Railroad is called at the Court House on the 3d of April to elect a treasurer, etc.

The Little Orphan's Dream.

We have received from Messrs. George Stinson & Co., Art Publishers, of Portland, Maine, a copy of a fine work of art in the shape of a large steel engraving, (size 23 by 30 inches.) The engraving is by Mr. A. H. Ritchie, well known as the best engraver on steel in America, and is after one of Mr. B. F. Reinhart's famous paintings. The engraving is new—just finished, and now for the first time before the public. We will add a brief description of the picture, though it cannot be expected that we can give more than a faint idea of its beauty. In an elegant apartment upon a couch is shown a beautiful little girl of tender age, asleep. During the warm summer night she has partly relieved herself of the bed clothing, displaying her beautiful little chubby limbs in the loveliest possible manner. She is a little orphan, as the title indicates, and is sweetly dreaming of her mother, about whom she has been told so much. She has thought so much of the matter that one night she dreams that her mother visits her—the beautiful being of light that she believes her to be, and it is this dream that the artist has portrayed with such power and effect. The mother is shown by the bedside as the child sees her in the dream. The outlines of her face and form are distinctly seen, although the figure is shadowy and ethereal. The mother is surrounded with a halo of soft, mysterious, heavenly light, and she is shown gazing upon her child with all the inexpressible love that ever comes from a mother's heart. In her extended hand she holds a white lily—an emblem of purity. The following lines have been suggested to our mind by this lovely picture. They will aid in giving the reader some idea of this rare work of art.

THE LITTLE ORPHAN'S DREAM.

O! blest is the vision that gives to the child
A face beaming o'er her so tender and mild,
The smile of a mother—oh, wavelet of joy!
A part of the gladness that has no alloy!
Oh! sweet will the orphan's slumber be,
If the darling her mother in dreams may see.

It Is Asserted as a Fact

That every canvasser who has turned his attention to the introduction of the New Family Sewing Machine in his locality, or who has been fortunate enough to secure an agency, has outstripped the best efforts in making money of the old and tried Agents of the high-priced machines, which latter they now replace. The demand is enormous, and sales so rapid and money made so readily with so little effort that Farmers, Tradesmen, Speculators, &c., are flocking into the business as fast as they can secure territory and get their goods on the ground to supply anxious customers. It is marvelous how these machines sell when exhibited, it being a recognized fact that people will buy the best at the lowest price. It certainly is the Machine of the times and does the same work as other Machines at $80.00 or $90.00, and we really believe it would sell just as readily at double, and then not cost half the usual price of so good an article, for it is astonishing to see the vast amount of labor it performs at so low a cost. The inventors are daily inundated with testimonials of the worth of their new Machines which so suddenly and successfully bounded into popular favor. It proves to be just what is wanted every day, by every one, everywhere, who has a family. It has attained an enviable reputation in many thousands of homes and factories, for its solid strength, power, rapidity, simplicity, certainty, and ease of operation with extreme beauty, fineness and reliability of its sewing; while the wonderful low price (Twenty Dollars for a Large and complete Sewing Machine with a strong table and treadle), places all idea of competition entirely out of the question. It stands alone in its merits and price. We advise you to invest in one at once for your Wife, Daughter, Mother, Sister or Lady Friend and make a home happy, or put them in your factory, or what is better if you are lucky enough, secure an agency, if there is none in your town, and make money yourself. The many new attachments for doing extra fine, skilful and difficult work, are a surprise in their simplicity of construction and far below even "grange prices," and will be delivered safe at your door, no matter how remote you may reside, if you write for them. ### A Royal Organ.

The stomach has been well named a "royal organ," since it sways and controls the entire system, every gland, tissue and nerve sympathizing with it as the servants of a prince sympathize with their master. Each one of them is fed and sustained by it—even the brain itself, the centre of sensation, is absolutely dependent upon it for sustenance. Consequently, when the stomach fails to perform its all-important office, the subordinate organs also falter in their duty. The reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have such a wonderously beneficial effect upon the general health, and are such a reliable preventive of disease, is that they speedily overcome weakness or disorders of the stomach, and thus insure complete nourishment of the entire system and a healthful performance of its various functions. Unlike those stimulants whose alcholic principle is unmodified by judicious medication, the spiritous basis of these Bitters, which is of the purest description, holds in solution herbal alteratives and invigorants to which a foremost rank has been assigned in materia medica. But it is not alone the fact that these sovereign botanic elements enter into the composition of the Bitters that constitutes them such a benign tonic and corrective, but also that they are so happily combined that the full effect of each is exerted upon the disordered or debilitated system. The digestive and secretive organs are the first to experience the beneficent operation, which extends, by sympathy, to the brain, the nerves and the circulation. The influence thus exerted is fruitful of those great sanitary results which have built up the reputation of this truly national medicine. mh5

Grammar in Rhyme.

The following is a complete grammar of the English language in a small space. Old, as well as young, should commit these lines to memory, for by their aid it will be difficult, if not impossible, for them to fall into errors concerning parts of speech.

I.

Three little words you often see
Are articles, a, an, and the.

II.

A noun's the name of anything,
As school or garden, hoop or swing.

III.

Adjectives show the kind of noun,
As great, small, pretty, white or brown.

IV.

Instead of nouns the pronouns stand,
Her head, his face, your arms, my hand.

V.

Verbs tell of something to be done,
To read, count, laugh, sing, jump, or run.

VI.

How things are done, the adverbs tell,
As slowly, quickly, ill, or well.

VII.

Conjunctions join the words together,
As men and women, wind or weather.

VIII.

The preposition stands before
A noun, as in, or through the door.

IX.

The interjection shows surprise,
As oh! how pretty—oh! how wise.

The whole are called nine parts of speech,
Which reading, writing, speaking teach.

Epitaph

On a watchmaker, taken from a stone in the old churchyard of Lidford, in Devon, England:

Here lies, in a horizontal position,
The outside case of
George Rougleigh, watchmaker,
Whose abilities in that line were an honor
To his profession.
Integrity was the main-spring
And prudence the regulator
Of all the actions of his life.
Humane, generous and liberal,
His hand never stopped
Till he had relieved distress;
So nicely were all his actions regulated,
That he never went wrong
Except when set agoing
By people
Who did not know his key;
Even then he was easily set aright again.
He had the art of disposing of his time so well
That his hours glided away
In one continual round
Of pleasure and delight,
Till an unlucky minute put a period to
His existence.
He departed this life November 14, 1802,
Aged 57;
Wound up
In hopes of being taken in hand
By his Maker,
And of being thoroughly cleaned and repaired
And set agoing
In the world to come.

"The Best Magazine for the Money we have ever seen."

The People's Monthly,
ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

"This is a good magazine for the home circle. There is something in it for every one. There is wit and humor for the jovial, sentiment and poetry for the romantic, bright and well-written editorials for the thoughtful, and good sound advice and suggestion to industrious housewives. But over and above all, it has now added a full page of Fashion plates, and the Fashion letter from New York is splendidly written by some "one that knows." It has long and short stories, which are always very well illustrated. The People's Monthly is, in fact, always a most welcome visitor."—Philadelphia Age.

"Its engravings are equal, and some of them are superior to anything in Harper or other illustrated papers of their class. On delicately tinted paper are printed original and selected stories, and carefully prepared miscellaneous matter, while every number contains full information respecting the fashions of the month.—Scranton Republican.

"No trashy or useless matter encumbers its pages, but the purest and most fascinating literature greets its two hundred thousand readers every month.—Easton Free Press.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral!

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the Cherry Pectoral has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded, if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR!
—FOR—
RESTORING GRAY HAIR
—TO ITS—
Natural Vitality and Color!

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stabilished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the Vigor is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.
